The Digital Transition Simplified...

With all the information regarding the transition of broadcast television from an analog to digital format on February 17, 2009, consumers have many questions. One of the most often asked questions is, "Do I need a new TV?"

If your TV gets its signal from a cable or satellite provider, it should continue to work as it does today. Should additional equipment be needed, TriCounty Telecom will have that equipment available.

If your TV gets its signal from an antenna, either rabbit ears or a rooftop antenna, you probably need to do something. You have two choices. One is to purchase a converter box that will allow your existing TV to accept digital signals. Analog TVs should continue to work as before to receive low-power, Class A or translator TV stations and with gaming consoles, VCRs, DVD players and similar products. The federal government is offering discount coupons for viewers who need to purchase converter boxes. (Remember: If your TVs are connected to TriCounty Telecom cable TV service, you do not need a converter box discount coupon.) If you have analog TVs connected to an over-the-air antenna and need discount coupons, visit www.dtv2009.gov or call 1-888-DTV-2009. The second option is to purchase a new TV with a digital tuner. TVs manufactured after March 2007 are required to have a digital tuner built in, so if your TV is relatively new you may not need to do anything.

More information is available at www.dtv.gov and www.dtv2009.gov as well as a number of other websites, including www.goTriCounty.biz/cabletv-hdtv.htm.

Outdoor Channel . . . For The Outdoorsman
